The Department of South African Sign Language and Deaf Studies at the University of the Free State (RSA), in partnership with the Joint ICA/IGU Commission on Toponymy as well as the ICOS Working Group on Toponymy, is pleased to announce the next biennial international symposium on place names – ISPN 2025.

Place names serve a dual purpose. On the one hand, they are geospatial indicators of physical locations and geographical features. On the other hand, place names are artefacts of cultural heritage and serve to connect people to places. This two-fold function creates tension from a place-names management perspective. Standardisation is required for effective public communication and record-keeping. However, standardisation inherently requires a selection of one or limited forms of names. This is in contrast to the reality of most societies, whereby multiple names are assigned to one location by different socio-lingual-cultural groups. The challenge is to create an internationally-recognised standardisation system, while retaining the colourful local diversity. With the theme for this symposium, we wish to explore issues around standardisation and toponymic diversity. We need to consider the symbolic importance of place names, and examine the challenges of developing best practices for research and management that are sensitive to local diversity. Papers with a focus on minority and indigenous names, including sign languages, are encouraged in particular.

Potential subtopics

Only a limited number of papers can be accommodated, as all sessions will be plenary. Abstracts (250 words) can be submitted by 18 April 2025 to Dr Chrismi Loth at kongresETFB@ufs.ac.za in the following (but not limited to) categories of research:

- Recognition beyond standardisation, especially for indigenous and minority place names.
- Best practices for the standardisation, management, and research of multiple place names.
- Diversity in place names stemming from multiple socio-lingual-cultural groups.
- Harmonising toponymic heritage in multicultural and multilingual societies.
- Adequate representation of place-name diversity in texts and on maps.
- Approaches towards standardisation.
- Other dimensions of place names: administrative, commercial and/or economic, cultural and historical/commemorative, physical, political, and linguistic.

Keynote speakers

- Prof Sambulo Ndlovu (University of Eswatini, Eswatini)
- Bill Watt (PlaceNames Australia)

About the venue

The symposium will be held face-to-face in Clarens, South Africa.
