

Short Learning Programmes for Distance and Online Teaching

Why?

- It will take a long time before normal face-to-face teaching for all grades resumes
- At any moment lockdown regulations could be tightened
- Even when things return to normal, some online features can improve your teaching
- Earn SACE accreditation. Earn a certificate for your CV.

What?

The University of the Free State is offering two Short Learning Programmes: (Click for more info)

1. Harnessing Social Media for Distance Teaching
2. Teach with Online Technologies \(bit.ly/teachonlineslp\)

Who?

1. Teachers who want to improve their use of social media such as WhatsApp to keep the learning process going, even if your IT knowledge is limited.
2. Teachers with at least moderate IT knowledge, who want to develop their pedagogical and technical skills to teach with a range of online tools and to use their school's LMS (e.g. Classroom / Teams / Moodle) effectively.

When?

The courses will start in August 2020

Both programmes are online and can be done in your own time.

How?

- Click here to fill in a registration form.

For more information contact:

Course 1: Dr Joleen Hamilton at 051 505 1482 or hamiltonj@ufs.ac.za

Course 2: Dr Angela Stott at 051 451 1024 or stottae@ufs.ac.za

