

BIOGRAPHY – KANANELO LEKGETHO

Kananelo Lekgetho is a final year student at the University of the Free State studying Bachelor of Computer Information Systems and currently serving as a student assistant at the Free State Centre for Human Rights. His responsibilities in this role include, among others, supporting office staff and assisting with administrative tasks.

His personal interests include advocating for, and contributing to, the development of the African people, with experience in a community outreach programme whereby he delivered computer literacy training sessions to members of Mangaung community in 2023. He aspires to excel in his vision and is willing to go an extra mile to realise it.