Why do a Postgraduate Diploma in Labour Law?

This Postgraduate Diploma in Labour Law (PGDLL) programme is designed to enable people to specialize in the general field of Labour Law. In addition, the Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration (CCMA) and Bargaining Councils have partnered with the University of the Free State and five other universities to deliver a Programme in Labour Dispute Resolution Practice, which forms an integral part of the PGDLL qualification.

For whom?

The qualification is targeted at legal practitioners, human resources officers, trade unionists, aspirant CCMA Commissioners and Bargaining Council Panelists and lastly individuals who wish to enhance their dispute resolution and conflict management skills in the area of industrial relations.

The programme

The PGDLL programme comprises out of six modules. The graduate must be able to understand, evaluate and critically explain selected topics from each of the respective modules. In addition to the six modules, the programme includes two compulsory practical workshops conducted and facilitated by local CCMA commissioners. The PGDLL is offered only in English and on a full-time basis. A brief summary of each module is given below.
