

BIOGRAPHY – Ms S DLAMINI

Slindile is a graduate student at the University of the Free State with a Bachelor of Science majoring in Genetics and Microbiology. As a career orientated person she is pursuing her studies further as she's currently doing her honors degree in Genetics.

Born in a millennium century, she was fascinated by chapter 2 of the Constitution of South Africa (Act 108 of 1996) which deals with the Bill of Rights. With her determination in human rights issues, she became a force to be reckoned with. In her quest to promote constitutional values, she became a Human Rights Ambassador for Welwitschia Residence in 2018. As action-orientated person and a critical thinker she was appointed as student assistant at the Free State Centre for Human Rights in 2021 where she networks with experts, politically inclined, informed people from the university and other organizations to help shape students to become responsible citizens that will transform our society to compete globally with developed countries.
