

BIOGRAPHY – MS THABANG RAMAKHULA

Thabang Ramakhula holds an LLB and LLM in Human Rights and Democratization in Africa. She is presently an LLD candidate at the Free State Centre for Human Rights, working on a thesis focusing on women’s political participation and representation in governance. She is also a human rights advocate, women’s rights and good governance activist and a development worker. Throughout her career, she has built demonstrated knowledge of a human rights-based approach to development, with a special focus on women’s rights and inclusive governance. She also works within other human rights fields, such as gender-based violence, inheritance rights, marriage rights, as well as children’s rights and environmental law. She also has demonstrated experience in community mobilisation, awareness-raising and consciousness.