NB. The curators of this collection undertake to maintain yeasts in such a way that their identity remains intact. However, the researcher must ensure that all yeasts obtained from this collection are pure and have the correct identity on receipt and for the project's duration. No cultures may be passed on to other parties without the written consent of the curators. The curators must also be informed about possible publications so that culture names and numbers can be checked and any benefits arising from using these cultures.
