The changing world of work and the challenging business environment increased the need for skilled and proper educated business leaders. In addition, participants in the economic process and business environment should be relevant for the future. The world-wide skills shortages in several fields of expertise increase the pressure on the demand for managerial leaders. Higher education institutions and more specifically, business schools, have an important responsibility not only to deliver sufficient numbers of well-trained managerial leaders, but also with the needed and required skills and competencies. Managerial leaders with vision, commitment, courage and flair, amongst others, are in demand to make significant contributions to the performance of business and industry.

The UFS Business School offers a suite of qualifications that will equip candidates to be relevant and successful being business leaders and entrepreneurs.

“The single biggest value that I derived in my four year investment in the UFS Business School PhD is the high end competency that I acquired, not to accept anything at face value in all the facets of my life, be it professional or otherwise. After obtaining my PhD, I am now a better Chief Financial Officer (CFO) and board member, who gets excited in competing and contradicting perspectives when we collectively endeavour to find solutions to our many problems. My philosophy now is that nothing is insurmountable. Like anything of great value in life, I found my PhD journey to be demanding dedication, hard work, and discipline as well as having some storms along the way. When those massive storms came along my journey, I found the Business School organisational culture to be very supportive, with timeous interventions, right from the director of the Business School (Prof Van Zyl) and at all levels. Because of that support, I was able to overcome the storms of my journey. When looking back, I realise this journey was a rare opportunity for me, that I will forever cherish.”

– Dr MM Gasela, 2018

“The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Business Administration journey at the University of the Free State (UFS) was very challenging and daunting, but a very fulfilling journey. The Business School offered me super support and unmatched initial supervision by Prof Helena Van Zyl. Dr Liezel Alsemgeest and Dr Cornelia Crous provided excellent supervision and mentorship which helped me to persevere the challenging journey. Indeed, the supervisors imparted critical and relevant transferable skills to me. For the current students, please know that the Business School will continue supporting you. For the prospective student out there, hesitate not, PhD at UFS is awaiting you.”

– Dr Z Banda, 2019
