Education and Work

She is an alumna and staff member of the University of the Free State, working in the Department of Student Affairs. She holds a qualification in Advanced Project Management from the UFS Business School, a BCom Honours degree with specialisation in Industrial Psychology, and a BSc degree with specialisation in Chemistry and Management, both from the University of the Free State. Lucy is also a qualified assessor and skills development facilitator.

Skills and Development

Her number one passion is developing others. She has worked in the skills and training, as well as the higher education industries for more than 10 years. She started her working career as an intern for a skills and development company in Bloemfontein and worked her way up to directorship within the same company in a space of five years. Her experience includes working in the building and construction industry, as well as the pharmaceutical industry.

Singing

She started singing as a soprano at the age of seven as part of the Adult Church Choir and in talent competitions at her primary school. She ventured into professional singing as a student at the University of the Free State when she won the Talent Competition in 2002 and has never looked back since. She has been part of two studio and one live recording project. She currently performs as a session vocalist on various platforms ranging from church to corporate functions.
