

Online workshop for Remote Sign Language Interpreting.

This workshop aims to equip South African Sign Language (SASL) Interpreters to deal with the challenges of remote interpreting, including practical tips for interpreting online and the use of various online platforms.

We are also presenting a SASL terminology networking session to discuss terminology management and signs used in different regions.

Presenters:

Elizabeth Deysel has been working as an interpreter for the past twelve years and is currently employed as an Afrikaans interpreter in the National Parliament of South Africa. She is enrolled for her PhD at Stellenbosch University with a specific focus on interpreting technologies and also lectures as a visiting scholar for the European Masters in Technology for Translation and Interpreting-programme.

Marsanne Neethling is a Masters graduate in Intercultural Communication, and she has worked as freelance South African Sign Language Interpreter for the last 27 years in various capacities and has experience within government, corporate, academic and NGO sectors. She currently works for the University of Stellenbosch as a SASL interpreter and serves on the SATI council.
