The Department of South African Sign Language and Deaf Studies invites you to an exciting online workshop:

Remote Sign Language Interpreting

During the Covid-19 pandemic, remote Sign Language Interpreting became the new normal. As SASLI's we have been forced to use technology which means no face-to-face contact with our clients. We are more exposed to criticism; we have less support from co-interpreters; and our role now seems to include being a IT specialist; etc.

This workshop aims to equip to deal with the challenges of remote interpreting as as a Sign Language Interpreter.

Our facilitator for the workshop is Elizabeth Deysel, an experienced interpreter working in National Parliament and currently doing her PhD in Technology and Interpreting, with the focus on how these tools impact the workflow of the interpreter.
